NATIONALLY SYNDICATED TV SHOW SPOTLIGHTS NW3C'S CONTRIBUTIONS TO CYBERCRIME-FIGHTING

RICHMOND, VA Representing the National White Collar Crime Center (NW3C), Indiana State Police Lieutenant Charles Cohen was featured as an expert on the subject of online dating scams during a recent appearance on the "Mike and Juliet in the Morning" show. The program is broadcast live from Fox studios in New York City to millions of homes across the U.S.

Cohen talked about the role of NW3C's Internet Crime Complaint Center as a "clearinghouse" for online scams of this type.

Cohen, who is cross-designated as a U.S. Marshal, is widely-recognized as an expert on cybercrime. As a published author and instructor, Cohen is regarded as a sought-after speaker who routinely participates in NW3C events including the upcoming October Conference in Memphis, TN.

About NW3C

Funded for over 30 years by the Department of Justice (DOJ), Bureau of Justice Assistance (BJA), the National White Collar Crime Center is a leader in helping law enforcement combat economic and cybercrime. For more information, please visit our web site: www.nw3c.org
